House of Delegates, contains officen followed another. The City Democratic Committee directed in its plan that ballots containing the names of one, two, three or four candidates for the Legislature should be rejected. The Byrd law, under which the primary was conducted, provides that the only ballots to be rejected are those containing more than five names, the law being that a man could vote for only one candidate, if he desired, such ballots to be counted.

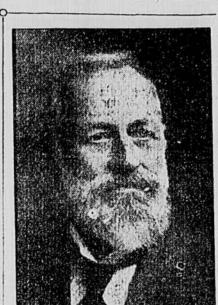

Committee Meets To-Night.

The fact, therefore, that no uniform system was followed practically forces the City Committee to order a recount. A majority of the members want the truth, which can only come that way. Refusal to act on the Curris petition, in view of the charge, might lead to court proceedings. Chairman Miles M. Martin has called a meeting for tonight, at which action will be taken on the petition, and if a recount is ordered, a date will he agreed upon to open the boxes and give the votes the real count which the public seems to demand.

'Negligee" Congress to Greet President

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, June 22.—There will be no frock-conted and silk-hatted Congress to greet President Wilson to-morrow when the House and Senate meet in the hall of the House of Representatives to hear him read his message urging currency reform legislation.

The hot weather has caused the statesmen to discard the symbols of legislative dignity and to don negligee attire. Alpaca coats and soft shirts will be popular. Informal conferences of lenders to-day resulted in the decision that the President, persisting in his desire to talk to the two houses, must expect to be received unceremoniously.

Washington, June 22.-The President of the United States will go to Congress to morrow to deliver the second message of his administration.

As when President Wilson submitted in Shakey Bend, and as soon as a rehis ideas on tariff reform, Congress will meet in joint session in the chamber of the House to hear his message

At 6 o'clock to-night several hun-dred men gathered at the jail and a lynching appeared imminent. When the majority of the crowd withdrew for supper, the sheriff slipped his prisoners out of the jail under heavy guard, placed them aboard a train and took them to Eastman, and thence to Macon, where precautions were taken to-night

From evidences at the scene of the murder it was supposed that shortly before daybreak. Hewell was called from his bed and went outside, carrying a lantern. His murderers riddled his head with shot.
